Human Harmony

Lesson For October 6, 1963

No one needs to be told that harmony is one of the great laws of the universe; some would say the greatest. This does not mean that we always find harmony where it ought to be, or that it is easy to produce or to maintain. It does mean that failure of harmony where harmony should be is always baffling and painful, and can be fatal. From the car engine in which the cylinders do not work with the rhythm the designers intended, on to the human being who is (as we say) "all to pieces," loss of harmony is always bad. To live in harmony with yourself, your fellow men and God is the road to life, the road to peace.

Broken Harmonies

When we look at life around us, we see tragic need for harmony in the very situations and institutions where we would have a right to expect harmony more than a matter of form. In American family today, look at the divorce problem. This is more than a matter of husband and wife bickering, as if their quarrels affected themselves alone. An able probation officer in a large American city has gone on record as saying he has yet to see a juvenile delinquent from a home where there was harmony between father and mother. The capital city of our country is plagued by crime of all sorts, and the authorities lay the blame less on the police force (who are doing all they can) than on the "breakdown of parental authority." Homes where there is disruption between man and wife, parents and children, are no help to society, but sore places, troublespots, breeders of disruption in other circles.

When we turn from the family to almost any aspect of public life, what strikes the mind again is feuding — in business, social life, politics, even in the church. You would think that in the church of Christ the very atmosphere would make quarrels impossible. Yet the experience of today mirrors the experience of the early Christian church. The same people to whom Paul writes as "sanctified in Christ Jesus," and "not lacking in any spiritual gift," are quarreling among themselves. The first three chapters of I Corinthians are devoted to this problem of quarreling Christians.

The Basic Harmony

Paul brings out the truth that there is one basic harmony on which all others are built. Without this basic harmony every other attempt at it fails in failure. This is the harmony between the Christian and God, and of course this means between the Christian and Christ. He does not so much urge the Christians to "behave" and to "make up" as he urges them to remember whose they are and whom they serve. It is through God — Father, Son, and Holy Spirit — that the jarring factions in the church find the solution of their quarrels. The more we think of other Christians as other Christians and not just as others - Outsiders, opponents, roadblocks to truth and progress — the closer we shall come to that harmony which in its perfection we shall never see in this world. The church can not come before God with its differences all ironed out, its harmonies restored, and offer God its self-made harmony and peace as a gift from us to Him. On the contrary, the church's disharmonies, quarrels, factions, once we are truly united to Christ and devoted to His cause, will begin to perish for the sake of the essential dirt of dissension.

Motives

What motives inspire those who seek harmony especially with their fellow-Christians? Is Mr. Elmo Banton at last moved by arguments? Is it for peace's sake that we lay our feuds aside? It is that want to present a solid front to the world? Peace may be motives, but not the best. Paul speaks of two motives promoting true Christian harmony between man and man, in the church or out. One is the "fellowship of our Lord Jesus." We belong to Him, every Christian does. We belong neither less nor more than others. Boasting and shoving are out of order. The other motive is service for Christ. As Paul and Apollos are very different men, worked each in his way without conflict, so may all of us unite — not always in ideas, but always in Christian service.

Pastor Speaks

THE BIG THREE

The conference table has become the center of world affairs in today's world. As long as nations can sit down together in the interest and spirit of sharing there is hope left in our world.

Infact I believe the great apostle Paul of 20 centuries ago has given us in the Bible the basis for a conference which will solve all of the major problems of this life and the life to come.

To climax a discourse on the "More Excelent" Way, he says, "Now abides Faith, Hope, and Love these three but the greatest or mightier of these is Love". I. Cor. 13:13) This big three does offer mankind the solution to all of his problems.

"Mr. Hope" says Mr. Faith "I believe in the ultimate victory of Christ and His Way. I have committed my life to Him and the redemption He has given. My cause, will begin to perish for the sake of the essential dirt of dissension.

Motives

What motives inspire those who seek harmony especially with their fellow-Christians? Is Mr. Elmo Banton at last moved by arguments? Is it for peace's sake that we lay our feuds aside? It is that want to present a solid front to the world? Peace may be motives, but not the best. Paul speaks of two motives promoting true Christian harmony between man and man, in the church or out. One is the "fellowship of our Lord Jesus." We belong to Him, every Christian does. We belong neither less nor more than others. Boasting and shoving are out of order. The other motive is service for Christ. A CENTURY OF COMMERCIAL BANKING

Recent Federal Law 87-397 now requires all institutions and corporations that pay interest and dividends to ask their depositor's or stockholders for their Social Security numbers.

This law applies to The Farmers National Bank.

To comply with this law we ask you to furnish us with your Social Security number.

We keep hustling toward our goal of serving you: promptly, efficiently, and in a friendly manner. When you need any banking service, come right in.
